entiemen. — My case is briefly as follows: I have Ostarrh for ten years, each year with increase serarity For nine years. That not breather ugh one nestril. I had dropping in the threat ry bad cough, asthma so bad as to be obliged to a remedy for it at might before being able to it a might before being able to it and the part of the control of the part of the set of the part of the set of the part of the set of the part of the part of the set of the part of hend. My head was at times so full of catarrha-matter as to injure my school chearing and compel-me to get up several times in the night to clear it and my throat before I could sleep. Every one of these distressing symptoms has disappeared under the use of not quite three bottles of SANVEND's Eadical Crim. My hearing is fully restored. I have no astimatic symptoms, no cough, no drop-pings in the throat, no headachs, and in every way better than I save been for year. I could feel the effects of the Crim on my specific, pa my kidneys, und, in fact, every part of my system. What has been dame in my case is wholly the effect of the Rancal Crim. Very respectfully. # Chemistry.

Chemistry is the science of the world and of the future—whatever may be said in praise of civil engineering to the contrary. The bridge which takes the engineer years upon years to construct, the chemist can in so many sixtieths of a second reduce to atoms.

istry has given us the baloon; it has put in our hands gunpowder, nitro-glyceriae, dynami'e, and, above all, fulminate of gold, an explosive so terrible that if an ounce of it be left in a stoppered bottle its grains failing among themselves by their own weight will create a convulsion sufficient to lay all London in rushs. It has given us poisons so table that, were we to employ such means of warfare, we could sail in a balfoon over the camp of the enemy and drop a shell, the bursting of which would kill every human being within a mile of ball which will explode the moment it touches water, and overwhelm in flames a hostile fleet. Indeed, the chemist reduces the works to its original and primal clements. For him, even more than the chemist reduces the works to its original and primal clements. For him, even more than the chemist reduces the works to its original and primal clements. For him, even more than the chemist reduced the president left his desk, and, walking to the chemist reduced the ch the engineer, nothing is impossible. And yet his power, vast as it is, is limited. He can more easily destroy than construct. He can take life but he cannot man and embraced him. He soon made into the cannot be canno give it. He can level the city with the known his errand, secured what he can create prussic acid, but he is ignorant of its antidote. He is like the fishrant of its antidote. He is like the lish-erman who rashly opened the vessel-scaled with the ring of Sulciman Ben Daoud. The forces at his control are beyond his command; the powers he can evoke he cannot lay. It is the old fory of Cornelius and Agrippa—those who triffe with nature's secrets do so at their result. their peril.

Many suloon keepers pay only $2 per gallon for whisky. A great many persons wonder why they have so little to show for their time and labor, and how it is that some people can manage to get so muck done. The secret, if there is any secret, lies in the fact that those who accomplish a great deal, work according to a well-defined and uniform plan.

A Good Horse,

Wind, says an old horseman, is the great secret of a fast horse. Good lungs will cover a multitude of faults, while, on the other hand, perfection of shape and form are useless when the wind is out. The chest, therefore, in all cases, should be large and spacious. It may vary somewhat in shape, according to the service to which the horse is to be put. If he is apt to be kept for slow work and heavy drawing, the chest may be nearly circular in form, because this shape is one for strength and bulk to re ceive and bear up against the pressure of the collar, while at the same time sufficient room is secured for the ex-pansion of the lungs caused by slow regular work. But if the chest is circalar let it be at the same time deep, or else the lungs may be cramped. A horse with a shallow chest is worthless for any purpose. The rule then is: For a draft horse, a circular but deep chest; but as you pass through the different

CORRUPT RUSSIANS.—The revelation. of corruption among Russian military officials are interesting. About $8,000,000 were stolen in the contracts for a supply of commissariat carts which were never produced. In 1877 one contractor was ordered to find seven thousand wagons. The Bessarabian persants offered to furnish them at two roubles-almost $1.50-a day, but the army officials wanted wagons with iron axles, which the peasants agreed to provide at five roubles a day. The staff declared this price exorbitant, and immediately let the contract to a Russian to fornish reven thousand wagons with wooden axles at six and a quarter roubles per diem. He sublet to the peasants at two roubles and pocketed four and a quarter a day, or nearly $750,000 a month on the lot.
